FT. WORTH TRADE EXCURSION HERE

sincere welcome on behalf of the commercial organization and the citizenship of the Queen City, saying in part:

The time was when Fort Worth was a long ways from Amarillo, that was when our modes of travel was with an ox wagon or prairie schooner.

Twenty-five years ago, the splendid railroad of the Fort Worth & Denver brought us in much closer touch, today, with the modern facilities of transportation and communication, we are suburb of your splendid city. We are glad to be such. You are our greatest, newest and dearest city. Our people look upon you as being their foster parent.

What we have is yours, what you have, we are going to try and get a part of it. It will help us, and you have it in such great quantities that you will not miss it.

We are glad that we are in some respects making good some statements that were made in your city when certain legislative measures were considered some five years ago. The statement was made that the time would come when your city would use our feed stuff. Today we are delighted to tell you that within less than 100 mile radius of this city there are more than 10,000 cars of grain shipped out, to say nothing of what is used at home. That is easily seven and a half to eight million dollars.

That may not sound much to you, gentlemen, from the interior where you have great quantities of wealth from your immense crops of cotton and corn, etc., but it is a big thing for the Panhandle.

We have a number of wholesale houses here that are doing a most profitable business of several millions of dollars annually.

The possibilities of our country here as a cattle feeding proposition are unsurpassable. With the splendid quality and high grade of cattle that are now being raised in this entire section and with our great quantities of feed and the numerous sides that are being erected day by day over this splendid Panhandle country, we are long going to command the attention, respect and consideration of this great southwest as to what we produce.

"In the past twelve months, I am not exaggerating, there has been commenced and consummated sales and exchange of live stock in this city of more than ten million dollars in the aggregate.

In our little clearing house association of which there are only four banks that are members, our total clearings for the past twelve months have aggregated twenty million dollars.

"We want to say to you before closing that we are delighted to have you with us. We cannot in our feeble way do as well by you as you deserve, or as well as we would like to, but we can only do for you all that we can, and give unto you our best, and that is all that the 'Bull Moose' or the Great Progressive could do.

In the name and in behalf of the citizenship of this city and of our splendid men, who are here and members of this Chamber of Commerce, and our beautiful ladies, and our happy children, of which more than 3000 are attending our schools daily, we bid you Welcome, yes, even thrice welcome to our city."

Following the hearty applause with which this address was greeted, Hon. Clarence Ousley, editor of the Fort Worth Record, was introduced and delivered a brief, forceful and fitting response to the city's welcome.

Mr. Ousley expressed gratification at the warm reception which had been accorded his party, declaring that it was both gracious and unexpected. He stated that it was the intention of the trades excursionists to stop into Amarillo, stop over night, and get out quietly without making a stir.

"For we realized," he declared, "that we were in another city of our own class. We look upon Amarillo as a sister city and congratulate her upon her wonderful success.

"When I think of the development of this city and section within the past few years," said the speaker, "and speculate upon what it is to be at no distant day, I feel like bowing my head and bending my knee in respect and admiration for the pioneers who sowed this land, endured the countless hardships of those trying days, and paved the way for us to enjoy its innumerable blessings."

Cries of "Carter! Carter!" arose, following conclusion of Mr. Ousley's short address, and Amon G. Carter, president of the Fort Worth Board of Trade, was presented. Mr. Carter made a short, hit-the-wall-on-the-head, drive-it-home speech, expressing his pleasure at the kindly reception tendered by Amarillo, and closing with warmest expressions for this city and its people.

Mr. Carter was followed by Will A. Miller, former mayor of Amarillo, who spoke happily and easily for a few moments. The speaker declared that it was not his purpose to make a speech. That he wanted the Fort Worth visitors to view the Amarillo You are sure to get results.

And I want you to meet them," he declared. "For you people are making and building a better and a greater Texas."

The speaker said that Amarillo might not have as much to offer as Fort Worth, and in this connection related a highly humorous story of the negro who named his cow Amarillo "because she had been dry so long." But you're welcome to all that we have and the best that we have," he said, and with such emphasis that the visitors knew that he meant it.

This proved the final address of the evening, and the visitors then went their separate ways, a number meeting old friends, others repairing to the Elks Home, and still others hiking homeward to their special train which had been transferred to the Santa Fe tracks, preparatory to the departure of the party to the South Plains country early this morning.

The train leaves Amarillo at 7:30 this morning, and the first stop of the day will be made at Canyon. The most important towns in the South Plains will be touched within the next few days, the special returning to Fort Worth by the latter part of the present week.

TULIA IS PROSPERING DECLares ZIMMERMAN

Dennis Zimmerman, a prominent attorney of Tulia, was in the city yesterday on professional business.

"Tulia is moving at a live clip this fall," said Mr. Zimmerman. "Bumper crops have put the country in prosperous shape and Tulia is showing the effect of such influence in a notable trade activity."

"We have recently completed a modern electric light and water plant which is owned by the city and operated for the good of the citizenship. The results already attained show that municipal ownership of utilities is a good thing for a small or large city."

A special feature of this system which is adding greatly to the appearance of our town, is the fact that current is furnished free of charge to any citizen who will put up light on the corner of his residence block or in front of his business building. In consequence, ornamental light standards of most modern type are being placed on the streets, giving the town a metropolitan appearance after nightfall."
